The Ballad of Old Ben.

Old Ben is dead, that good old man,
We ne'er shall see him more;
He wore a vest of human skin
All tattoed down before.

He loved his kind; the laboring man
Found him a steadfast friend,
But worked at tanning paupers' hides
And tanned them to the end.

He shed great tears o'er human woes
And lightened human loads,
And when he rode two nags at once
The nags went different roads.

The bottom dog was his delight,
His aim, the peace to keep,
He never told the truth but once,
And that was in his sleep.

He always stood up for the right
And plead for honest votes,
He gave his servants only checks
And fed his horse on oats.

In modesty and common sense
He weighed full many a ton,
Upon the stump his hobby was
Vox-in-per-e-ah-um.

In principles original
He never needed "quotes,"
He spent his years, till sixty-five,
Exploding powder boats.

But now he's gone; an anxious poll
Availed his life to save;
And sixteen times ten thousand men
Are sitting on his grave.

MISERABLE MORTALS.

FOUR SUICIDES UP IN A BALLOON.

WANTED—Four persons who are bent upon committing suicide, to engage in a hazardous adventure. Apply to Cowgill, No. [illegible] Bank street, after 9 o'clock this morning.

Capt. Cowgill inserted the above advertisement in three of the morning papers, with only a faint expectation that it would be responded to. But the result was that between 9 o'clock and noon five men and two women called at his office to inquire respecting the nature of the proposed adventure, and to offer their services in the event that it should involve nothing of a criminal character. Of the seven, Captain Cowgill selected four; three men and one young woman, and when he dismissed the others, he closed the door and then said to the applicants:

'What I want you for is this. I have made up my mind that the North Pole can never be reached by an exploring party traveling upon ships and sledges. The only route that is possibly practicable is through the air, and the only available vehicle, of course, is a balloon. But an attempt to reach the Pole in a balloon must expose the explorers to desperate risks, and it occurred to me that those risks had better be taken by persons who do not value their lives, than persons who do. It always seemed to me that a part of the sin of suicide lies in the fact that the life wantonly sacrificed might have been expended in a cause which would have conferred benefits, directly or indirectly, upon the human race. I have a large and superbly equipped balloon, which will be thoroughly stocked for a voyage to the Arctic regions, and, among other things, it will contain apparatus for making fresh supplies of hydrogen gas. Are you four persons willing to make the required attempt in this balloon?'

All four of the visitors readily answered 'Yes.'

'Were you going to sacrifice your lives at any rate?'

An affirmative answer was given by all four.

'Permit me to take your names,' said Captain Cowgill, and he wrote them, as follows: William P. Crutter, Dr. Henry O'Hagan, Edmund Jarnville, Mary Dermott.

Mr. Crutter was a man apparently of about 60 years, handsomely dressed, manifestly a gentleman, but with a flushed face, which indicated that he had perhaps indulged to some extent in dissipation.

Dr. O'Hagan was rather pallid and careworn. He looked as if he were ill, and as if all joy were dead in his once light heart.

Mr. Jarnville appeared to be a workingman, but his countenance, and as it was, was full of intelligence, and his manner was that of a man who had occupied a social position much above the lowest.

Miss Dermott sat with an air of dejection, with her hands in her lap, with a thin and faded old shawl pinned around her shoulders, and with her pale cheeks suggestive of hunger and mental suffering.

'My hope,' said Captain Cowgill, 'is that you will safely reach your destinations, and safely return. But you fully understand that the chances are against you. For my own protection I will ask you to certify in writing that you go with full knowledge of the risks. I will inflate the balloon to-morrow. Day after to-morrow come to this office at nine o'clock, and you will make the ascension at once.'

On the appointed day the four volunteers appeared, and Captain Cowgill drove with them in a carriage to a yard in the outskirts of the city, where the balloon, inflated and swaying to and fro in the wind, was held to the earth with stout ropes. The three men were supplied with warm clothing, but Miss Dermott had only her threadbare shawl, and so Captain Cowgill gave her his overcoat and two blankets which he took from the carriage.

While the voyagers were taking their places in the commodious car attached to the balloon, a young man entered the yard and hurriedly approached Captain Cowgill.

'I am going with the balloon,' he said, almost fiercely, and at the same time hardly deigning to look at Captain Cowgill.

'Impossible,' said the Captain. 'The crew is made up. You don't comprehend our purpose.'

'Yes, I do,' said the young man. 'These people are would-be suicides, and they're going to start for the pole. I am going along.'

'True, my dear sir,' began the Captain, in a tone of expostulation, 'You can—'

'I will go, or I will slay myself right here before you! These people are no more tired of this earth and their life than I.'

'Let him come,' said O'Hagan, gloomily.

'But,' returned Captain Cowgill, 'I am afraid that the balloon will be overloaded.'

'Well, sir, I am going, anyhow,' said the young man, as he leaped into the car.

Captain Cowgill sighed and said, 'Well, you will have your own way, I suppose.'

'My name is John Winden,' remarked the intruder. 'I tell you so that you will know if any one ever inquires after me. But I don't imagine that anybody will.'

Then the Captain bade farewell to the party, the ropes were loosed, and the balloon went sailing swiftly towards the clouds. Dr. O'Hagan was the navigator in charge. Presently a northeasterly current of wind struck the air ship, and it began to move with great rapidity upon a horizontal line.

For a long time nobody in the car spoke. Indeed, the voyagers scarcely looked at each other; and none had enough curiosity to peer over the side upon the glorious landscape that lay beneath. But, after a little while, Mr. Crutter, who, gazing at Miss Dermott, said:

'Are you fully resolved on self-destruction?'

'Yes,' she replied.

'So am I,' said Mr. Crutter.

'And so am I,' remarked Mr. Winden.

'And so am I,' observed Mr. Jarnville.

'Yes, and I, also,' added Dr. O'Hagan.

'Even if we reach the pole safely, and return, I shall not want to live,' said Mr. Crutter.

'Neither shall I,' said Miss Dermott, sighing.

'No, my friends, nor I,' remarked Mr. Winden.

'Nor I,' added Dr. O'Hagan and Mr. Jarndale, in a breath.

There was a silence for the space of half an hour or more.

Mr. Crutter then remarked:

'Do you know I find this to be rather a pleasant experience, sailing along thro' the ether calmly far above the distractions of the world? If I were not so very miserable I think I should really enjoy it.'

'I am too unhappy to enjoy anything,' said Miss Dermott; 'but this I confess is not unpleasant.'

'Pleasant enough,' remarked Mr. Winden—'if a man had no anguish in his soul.'

'I had no idea that there was so much exhileration in the upper regions of the atmosphere,' said Dr. O'Hagan rather cheerily.

'I think I feel better myself,' said Mr. Jarnville.

'It is very strange!' observed Mr. Crutter, addressing Miss Dermott, 'that young people, like you and Mr. Winden here, should be weary of life. That an old man like me should long for death is comprehensible. But why do you wish to die?'

Neither Mr. Winden or Miss Dermott made any response.

'I tell you,' said Dr. O'Hagan, throwing a bag of ballast overboard, to check the descent of the balloon. 'We are going to destruction together; and why should we not as companions in misery, unfold our griefs to each other?'

'It would be very proper, I think,' remarked Mr. Crutter, 'and I will commence if the rest of you will consent to follow.'

The other four travelers then agreed to do so.

'Well, I haven't much to tell,' said Mr. Crutter. 'The fact is I have always had plenty of money with which to live in idleness and luxury, and I have so lived. I have tried every kind of pleasure life can afford, and money buy, and I have reached a condition of satiety. Moreover I have ruined my digestion, and I am now a sufferer from chronic dyspepsia of a horrible kind. This makes existence a burden. I am eager to quit it. This is all.'

'How strange the difference between us!' said Dr. O'Hagan. 'I have been deeply engaged in the practice of my profession for many years; and I am utterly worn out and broken down with overwork. I am nervous, exhausted, irritable and even wretched, but I have lost my savings in a speculative venture and cannot rest. I must either work on or die.'

'That is partly my case,' said Miss Dermott. 'I am friendless and poor. I cannot earn enough by sewing to buy sufficient food, and I can no longer face the misery that I have endured for so many long years. I prefer death a thousand times.'

'And I,' said Mr. Jarnville, 'am a disappointed inventor. I have for years labored upon the construction of a smoke-consumer, but now that it is done I have not money enough to pay for a patent; and I am starving. After trying everywhere to obtain assistance, I have resolved to give up the struggle and to find refuge in the grave.'

Mr. Winden cleared his throat once or twice before beginning his story. He seemed to labor under some embarrassment.

'The truth is,' he said, 'I was rejected last night by a young lady whom I love, and I made up my mind that life without her would not be worth having.'

Nobody spoke for some time, and then Dr. O'Hagan said: 'The balloon is falling, and instead of throwing out ballast, I think it might be better, perhaps, to let it come down and tie it to a tree, and make a fresh start with additional gas in the morning.'

The other aeronauts gave their approval to this plan, and then Dr. O'Hagan threw out the grappel. It caught upon a tree top and after some difficulty the balloon was brought down and tied fast, while the whole party stepped out of the car.

It was a wild and desolate place, but the four men soon started a fire, and while Mr. Winden and Mr. Jarnville prepared supper, Dr. O'Hagan and Mr. Crutter went to work to arrange some kind of a shelter for Miss Dermott for the night.

After supper the five people gathered about the fire, and there really seemed to be a growth of cheerfulness in the party.

'I've been thinking,' said Mr. Crutter, 'what an outrageous shame it is that this poor child here,' pointing to Miss Dermott, 'should actually be in want of food, while I have more money than I know what to do with. I tell you what, Miss Dermott, if you will agree to go back you can have my whole fortune. I've left it to an asylum, but I'll write a new will now, and tell you where you can find the other one, so as to tear it up.'

'I don't want to go back,' said Miss Dermott.

'I would if I were you,' said Mr. Winden. 'It's a shame for you to go upon such an awful journey as this. And I've been thinking, Mr. Jarnville, since you spoke about your smoke-consumer, that my father, who is a wealthy iron-mill owner, has offered a large reward for a perfect contrivance of that sort. If yours is a good one, he will help you to a fortune.'

'I wish I had known that yesterday,' said Mr. Jarnville.

'Yes,' said Dr. O'Hagan, 'and if I had known that Mr. Crutter here was being driven to suicide by dyspepsia, I could have helped him, for I have been successful in treating that complaint. Let me examine you, Mr. Crutter. Yes,' said the doctor, after spending a few moments looking at and talking to Mr. Crutter, 'I feel certain I can cure you.'

'I would have given you half my fortune yesterday for such an assurance,' said Mr. Crutter. 'But it is now too late.'

'If I had met you then,' said the doctor, 'I should not have been here now.'

'Can't we all go back again?' asked Mr. Jarnville.

'Impossible!' said Dr. O'Hagan.

'I've got nothing to go back for,' said Mr. Winden. 'There is no remedy for my trouble that I can perceive.'

'There are other young ladies who would make good wives,' said Mr. Crutter.

'Oh, I know, but—' said Mr. Winden hesitating, and looking furtively at Miss Dermott.

Miss Dermott blushed.

'Suppose we rest for the night and sleep on the matter,' said Dr. O'Hagan. 'There's no use of being in a hurry.'

Miss Dermott retired to sleep beneath a shelter of boughs, where were strewn some pine and hemlock branches. Dr. O'Hagan covered her carefully with the blankets, and then the four men stretched themselves by the fire and fell asleep.

The conversation between the travelers must inevitably have had a good effect. The surest remedy for a morbid propensity to brood over our troubles is to have our sympathy excited for the troubles of others.

After breakfast in the morning Mr. Crutter said:

'I have solemnly considered all that was said last night, and I have a proposition to make. Dr. O'Hagan, if you will return with Miss Dermott and Mr. Jarnville, you three may divide my fortune between you, and Mr. Winden can give a letter to his father to Mr. Jarnville, about the smoke-consumer; and then Mr. Winden and I will continue this journey together. How will that do?

'I am willing to drop off and return,' said Mr. Jarnville.

'I will go only on condition you will go also,' said Dr. Hagan. 'I will make you a well man if you agree.'

'But,' said Mr. Crutter, 'it would be a shame to leave Winden here alone with this balloon. No; I have had enough of life. I proceed on the voyage.'

'There is a good deal of force in what the Doctor says, though,' remarked Mr. Winden.

'Why, you are not thinking about backing out, too, are you?' inquired Mr. Crutter.

'Well, I don't know,' said Mr. Winden, looking half ashamed. 'It seemed to me last night, when I got to thinking about it, that a woman's scorn is hardly worth a man's life, and I—,

'You are right!' said Mr. Crutter. 'It isn't. Suppose we put the matter in this way: If Dr. O'Hagan cures me I will give him $50,000 in cash, and I will go into partnership with Mr. Jarnville in his invention. We can see your father about it, and you can return to him while I adopt Miss Dermott as my daughter.

'I have thought,' said Mr. Winden, 'of a slightly different plan, but possibly it could not be carried out.'

'What was that?' asked Dr. O'Hagan.

'Why,' said Mr. Winden, 'I thought perhaps—but, no! there is no use mentioning it—that possibly Miss Dermott, instead of becoming your daughter, would consent to become my wife. Would you entertain such a proposition, Miss Dermott?'

Miss Dermott hung her head, and seemed to be covered with confusion.

'I will think about it,' she said.

'That means she will give her consent,' said Mr. Crutter, smiling. 'Let her come with me while she is thinking the matter over. Are you all agreed to my plan?'

Everybody expressed assent to it, and everybody seemed very happy.

'Why, what is that?' suddenly exclaimed Miss Dermott, pointing to a distant object above them.

'I verily believe that is our balloon,' said Dr. O'Hagan. 'Yes, it is gone! It must have broken loose while we were at breakfast.'

'Oh, well,' said Mr. Crutter, 'let it go! Who cares! I'll pay Captain Cowgill for losses. And now let us see about getting home.' Mr. Winden and Mr. Jarnville started to hunt for a conveyance, and in about two hours they returned with one. The nearest railway station was thirteen miles away, but in two hours more the party reached it, and while Mr. Crutter purchased tickets for the coming train, Dr. O'Hagan went into the telegraph office and sent the following dispatch:

Captain W. A. COWGILL:—Balloon escaped. Party all safe and perfectly happy. Will reach home to-morrow morning. HENRY O'HAGAN.

The Brooklyn Bridge.

After about fourteen years hard labor the great suspension bridge between New York and Brooklyn has been completed, and thus two large cities connected in a manner which was never dreamed of in Revolutionary times. It is indeed the crowning work of the century, and can be classed among the wonders of this country. The suspension bridges at Niagara Falls and over the Ohio river at Cincinnati, are merely foot bridges in comparison with it. Its dimensions, history and cost are familiar to all readers of the daily papers, and do not need to be repeated here; but we do wish to speak of Peruna, the greatest discovery of this century. It is a medicine discovered by Dr. S. B. Hartman, of Pittsburg, and prescribed by him in thousands of cases during thirty years of continuous practice. Ask your druggist for the pamphlet entitled the "Ills of Life," which gives full and complete directions for the preservation of the health. Try Peruna, the great tonic.

Providence and the Crop.

"Your crop seems to be considerably in the grass," said a passer-by to a negro who sat on the fence. "Yes, sah, Gen. Green's dun got it." "Did you overplant yourself?" No, sir; planted 'bout 'nuff." "Why didn't you plow it?" "Wife took sick. She does the plowin' for dis place." "What does I do? I preaches, dat's what I does. Ef Providence comes along an' makes de 'oman sick, I kan't help it. I'se been called, I has."—Macon Telegraph.

LIFE IN THE SOUTH.

A Georgia Boy's Life and Death Struggle with an Alligator.

Captain R. E. Johnson, of Clinch county, Georgia, writes me the following particulars of a desperate struggle with a monster alligator, in which his little son, Joseph, played an unwilling part: It seems that Henderson's mill pond, near the northern part of the county, had nearly dried up, and one day last week was chosen by the neighbors for a seining frolic. Captain Johnson, with his little son, joined twenty-five or thirty others in the undertaking, as it was known that trout and the various fish of the perch family were to be had in great quantities by the going. The party were supplied with nets, gigs and other appliances, and were soon scattered here and there over the now shallow pond, playing havoc with the finy tribe.

Master Joseph carried a bag, or corn sack, in which to deposit the fish when caught. When loaded with as many as he could carry he would take them out and make a deposit and return for more. In making one of these trips, while wading through water about three feet deep, some distance from the fishermen, a monster alligator, said to be of unusual size, rose suddenly right at the boy and seized him by the thigh. A desperate struggle ensued—the boy battled for his life and the alligator for his prey. It so happened that the bag, which hung by the boy's side, was caught in the alligator's mouth with the thigh, and, it proved a sort of shield—lessening greatly the incisions made by the brute's teeth, and thus, perhaps, preventing a shock to his nervous system which might have made him succumb without the struggle which saved him his life. By an effort—one of those superhuman efforts which come to men when only facing death—the boy tore his bleeding flesh from the alligator's jaws. The monster grimly held to the sack a moment with the delusion, perhaps, that he still had his prey, affording the boy an opportunity for escape. He had hardly extricated himself from the jaws of death before the fishermen, alarmed by the struggle, were at hand, and another battle ensued. Thirty men, armed with gigs, poles, pocket knives and such other instruments of war as were at hand, charged upon the monster. Being in three feet water the 'gator had considerable advantage, but those men had their blood up and were not to be outdone. They poled and punched and harpooned him until the brute was almost outdone, when one of the party made bold to seize him by the tail. This was a signal for a general assault. In less time that it would take to tell it a number of the more daring had him by the tail and legs. There were too many of them for the 'gator to slap around with his tail, a peculiar mode of 'gator warfare, and he had to give up the fight. A harpoon was plunged into his mouth and then it was safe to approach with pocket knives. Soon his head was severed from his body, and the victorious party marched out of the pond with the monster's head on a pole. Fortunately a physician was among the party and he at once dressed the boy's wounds. Captain Johnson writes that Master Joseph, while he suffers much, is doing well, and will likely be out soon.

COURAGE is a noble trait. With some it requires greater courage to live than it does to die. When disease racks the frame, when sores cover the person, when aches are in every joint, when the muscles are soft and flabby, when the least exertion gives fatigue, when the mind is filled with gloom and despondency, what is there in life worth living, and yet many eke out just such a miserable existence, living only for those who love them. When it is generally known that Brown's Iron Bitters will cure the above disorders how many hearts will be made glad! How many homes made happy!

A Fairy Tale From the State of Georgia.

A lady, while engaged in the pursuit of her domestic duties, encountered a mouse in the flour barrel. Now most ladies, under similar circumstances, would have uttered a few genuine shrieks and then sought safety in the garret; but this one possessed more than the ordinary degree of genuine courage. She summoned the man servant and told him to go get the gun, call the dog and station himself at a convenient distance. Then she clambered up stairs and commenced to punch the flour barrel with a pole. Presently the mouse made its appearance and started across the floor. The dog started at once in pursuit. The man fired and the dog dropped dead. The lady fainted, fell down stairs and the man, thinking she was killed and fearing that he would be arrested for murder, disappeared and has not been seen since. The mouse escaped.

Where's Your Gimlet?

Little Johnny Yerger has caused a breach between Gus DeSmith, an Austin society gentleman, and the Yerger family. Gus called to make a friendly visit after supper, he having previously informed Colonel Yerger of the intended honor. The whole family and Gus were in the parlor, when Johnny riveted the attention of all present by asking Gus DeSmith:

"Have you brought your gimlet with you?"

"What's that Johnny?" returned Gus quickly.

"Did you bring your gimlet with you to-night?"

"Hush, hush, Johnny," said Mrs. Yerger.

"Go to bed, sir," said Colonel Yerger, to the boy.

"What did you mean, Johnny?" asked Gus.

"Don't mean nuffin, cept I heard pa say you were coming up this evening to bore us all."

A Golden Opinion.

A well known author has said: "Every youth should live with an eye on old age. If he should die before he gets there, it will never do him any injury." Just so should all youth be taught by their parents and teachers that Peruna, the great tonic, is just the remedy he needs for all the ailments to which flesh is heir. Many golden opinions of its value and of its unprecedented success have been received by its discoverer, all of which express the most unbounded confidence in its value as a remedy, and all tell what it has done for the afflicted.

C. H. Watson writes from Brooklyn, New York, that he began taking Peruna while at Connoanton, Pa., for a severe pain in the side. After taking three bottles, the pain was almost entirely removed, and he now asks where he can get the world-renowned tonic in Gotham. He knows where he gets relief. Ask your druggist for Peruna, also the "Ills of Life."

How it Happened.

He was a bank teller. He had been sent off on a vacation, his books overhauled, and he had been found to be $9,000 short. This fact stared him in the face as he sat amid the Board of Directors.

"How, then," said the President, "I presume you acknowledge the embezzlement?"

"I do."

"Can you tell how you used the money?"

"Yes, sir."

"How?"

"In speculating."

"Speculating!"

"That's what."

"In what?"

"Well, I was a bull in the X Y Z railroad stocks, but there was too much against me. I didn't have a fair show to make anything."

"Why—how?"

"Because, while I was using $9,000 of the bank's surplus money to bull the stocks, the cashier was putting up just exactly $30,000 to bear them, and so I lost all!"

Peterson's Magazine

For December is, as usual, ahead of all the lady's-books. Splendid as this magazine has been in the past, the present number quite outstrips itself. There are more than a hundred pages of reading-matter; two superb steel-plates; a colored pattern, costlier even than a chromo; a colored fashion, double size, printed from steel; and more than half a hundred wood-cuts of fashions, work-table patterns, etc., etc. The stories are, as always, exceptionally good; "Peterson" has long had the reputation of giving the best.

The December number ends the year. Now, therefore, is the time to subscribe for 1884, or to get up clubs. We advise our fair readers to subscribe for no magazine till they have seen a copy of this. Specimens are sent gratis, if written for in good faith. The price is but TWO DOLLARS a year to single subscribers. To clubs, it is cheaper still, viz: Four copies for six dollars and a half, with an extra copy of the Magazine as a premium to the person getting up the club. Or five copies for eight dollars, with both an extra copy of the Magazine for getting up the club, and also a superb illustrated book of the poets, called "The Golden Gift," or a large-size steel-engraving, for framing, "Tired Out." No other magazine gives such premiums. For larger clubs, the price is still lower, while, even more premiums are given. A Strategy in Slippers.

She gave him a beautifully worked pair of slippers. Although they were too short and pinched him across the toes, he smilingly submitted to the martyrdom which they imposed, and vowed they should never leave his feet. Shortly afterwards the young man made a return for her offering. It was his picture encased in a handsome frame. He wrote a note to send with it, and at the same time replied angrily to an oft repeated dun for an unpaid-for suit of clothes. He gave the boy sixpence to deliver the package and notes, giving explicit directions as to the destination. He was an unusually intelligent boy with a freckled face, and he discharged his errand in a manner that should give him a niche in the temple of fame. The young lady received a note in her adored one's handwriting, and flew to her room, to devour its contents. She opened the missive with eager fingers and read: 'I am getting tired of your everlasting attention. The suit is about worn out already; it never amounted to much anyhow. Please go to Jericho.' And the tailor was struck utterly dumb when he opened a parcel and discovered the picture of the delinquent customer, with a note that said: "When you gaze upon these features, think how much I owe you." When that unfortunate young man called around that evening to receive the happy acknowledgment of his sweetheart, he was unconsistently shown the door by the young lady's father; and in the morning he was waited upon by the tailor's lawyer and imperatively ordered to settle or suffer.—London Herald.

James Nutt's Defense.

UNIONTOWN, Nov. 16.—Major Brown and Marshal Schwartzwelder, of Pittsburg, who will assist in defending young James Nutt for the killing of Dukes, have been in town consulting with the local counsel as to matters pertaining to the defense. Nothing has been given out concerning the line to be pursued by the defense. The counsel for the Commonwealth seem to take it for granted, however, that the plea will be insanity, as they are known to be subpœnaing witnesses to testify as to young Nutt's mental condition. Some of the teachers under whom he was a pupil in the public schools have been summoned to appear. The overwhelming defeat of Searight, Dukes' political champion, is regarded as an expression of public sentiment that will not injure Nutt's chances any. The trial comes up the 1st of December.

Buried Trees in Washington.

A most remarkable discovery was made by the workmen engaged in digging the foundation for the new Casino building on Connecticut avenue, near Seventeenth street, the other day. In the northwest section of the foundation an excavation was dug twenty-three feet below the surface and through a bank of solid red and black clay, twelve feet in thickness, for the purpose of constructing a lowering stage. At this great depth and below the solid twelve-foot mass of clay a dense forest and thick growth of plants was found. The formation of the trees is perfect. They resemble ash, cedar and poplar and it has probably been thousands of years since they saw the light of day before. The wonderful sight of a subterranean forest so far below the surface was witnessed by hundreds of people, and many specimens of the trees and grass were carried away as curiosities. One piece of wood and clump of grass were sent to the white house.—Williamsport Bulletin.

DRUGGISTS' PROFITS.

Secrets of the Trade Given Away—How a Sixty-Five Cent Prescription was Figured to Cost Six Cents.

"I suppose you are tolerably familiar with druggists and the drug trade?" said a Chicago Tribune reporter to a traveling man whose opportunities for going behind the returns are unexcelled.

"Well, rather," answered the drummer. "I flatter myself that I do know a thing or two about the business."

"I wish you would give me—on the square, you know—an idea of the profits of a prescription druggist."

"Well, it's hard to figure it out exactly or even to average it. You see, the time consumed in making up a prescription, the cost of the drugs, etc., vary greatly, and besides, druggists have different ways of charging for them; but I'll give you an actual occurrence and you may judge for yourself. I was selling some goods to a druggist, an old customer of our house, one day in a town not a thousand miles from this city, when a man came in for a prescription which he had previously ordered. 'How much is it?' he asked. 'Sixty-five cents,' answered the druggist. 'Isn't that pretty steep?' asked the man. 'Oh, no; we couldn't afford to put it up for a cent less,' answered the druggist, with every appearance of frankness. After I had finished my business with the druggist, said I, smiling, 'Say, Smith, just for fun, let's figure up what that 65 cent prescription cost you.' 'All right,' said he, smiling, also. So we figured it up carefully, including every possible item—his time at the rate of $3 a day, the cost of the drugs, bottle, label, cork, twine, wrapping paper, etc. The calculation was rather difficult at times, owing that the labels cost but 38 cents per 1,000, the corks 24 cents per gross, etc., but we stuck to it, and the most we could make that 65-cent prescription cost was 6½ cents. It happened to be one which required no mixing and the component parts were cheap; but I guess it was a fair sample, all the same. By the way, did you ever notice that the druggist seldom charges 25, 50 or 75 cents for a prescription? He charges 20 or 30, 45 or 65, 70 or 80 cents. It looks as though he was charging upon a fixed scale, instead of guessing at it, with a liberal margin for profit, you see. It looks better, too, especially if the druggist stops and thinks a moment before announcing the price. Druggists size up their customers and charge accordingly, with an extra dime or quarter added if the customer is unfortunate enough to be a trifle green."

I find Dr. Day's Cough Syrup to be better than any other that I ever tried.

A Frog in the Heart of an Oak.

James Giles, a farmer near Austin, Texas, cut down a live-oak tree last week and found in the centre of the tree a live frog. He says there was no hole from the cavity in the tree where the frog was found to the outside, and that there was no way that the frog could have got in and no way for him to get out. The cavity, he says, had been made by a part of the tree growing together and that the frog must have hopped into that cavity before it grew together and there remained ever since.

WOMAN'S PROVINCE.

The Duties of the Gentler Sex—How Best Fulfilled.

What a great task is assigned to woman, its dignity cannot be elevated. It is not her province to make laws, to lead armies, nor to be at the head of great enterprises, but to her is given the power to form those forms those by whom the laws are made, to teach the leaders of mighty armies, and the governors of vast empires. She is required to guard against having the slightest taint of bodily infirmity touch the frail creature, whose moral, intellectual and physical being is derived from her. She must instill correct principles, inculcate right doctrines, and breathe into the soul of her offspring those pure sentiments which in time to come will be a part of themselves and bless generations as yet unborn. Yes, to a woman is given the blessed privilege of aiding the sufferers in all the various stages of his existence. She smiles serenely at the christening, and weeps at the burial, while she soothes the bereaved heart. This is her province and duty. Yet how can she fulfill her mission unless she is possessed of a strong and healthy body? The preparation of Dr. S. B. Hartman, and known as PERUNA, is just the thing for all persons suffering from a majority of the complaints incident to this climate. It is invaluable to women, and Mrs. J. W. Reynolds, of New Lisbon, Columbiana county, is a noted example of what the medicine can do. She says she had suffered for years with congestion of the lungs, catarrh in the head, and was troubled with a bad cough. She had tried a number of physicians, but they all failed to cure her. She was induced to try PERUNA, and immediately a marked change took place. After using one bottle her cough ceased, and in a short time her other ailments were cured. She is now completely restored to health, and gives all the credit to PERUNA.

You are each held in $5,000 bail to stand trial in the court of general sessions."

Smethport, Pa., Nov. 23, 1883.

A sad bereavement has fallen upon the domestic household of Governor Pattison, in the death of his young son, which occurred Tuesday. Both houses of the legislature promptly passed appropriate resolutions of condolence, and then adjourned until evening.

The Clarion Republican Gazette states that W. A. Beer, member of the legislature from that county, has been engaged in teaching school at Callensburg in that county during the whole of the extra session, only occasionally spending a day in Harrisburg so as to keep his name on the pay roll. He is of course a great democratic reformer, and has a good deal to say about "Bossism," "Treasury Rings," etc.

At last the official vote cast at the November election is proclaimed from the state department. The totals and majorities are:

FOR AUDITOR GENERAL.

Jerome B. Niles, republican	319,106
Robert Taggart, democrat	312,081
T. P. Kinsler, greenback	4,131
John R. Fordham, prohibition	5,802
Niles plurality	17,023
Niles majority	4,911
Aggregate vote	638,191

FOR STATE TREASURER.

William Livsey, republican	321,000
Joseph Powell, democrat	300,[illegible]
A. T. Marsh, greenback	4,411
Ira B. Howard, prohibition	5,967
Livsey's plurality	20,[illegible]
Livsey's majority	[illegible]
Aggregate vote	631,[illegible]

The aggregate vote for governor in 1882 was 743,863. This year there was a falling off of 110,636. The highest vote ever cast in Pennsylvania was for president in 1880, when it ran up to 873,000. Next year it is expected that the vote will reach 900,000, and it may possibly be 950,000. The greenback vote is rapidly dwindling away. In 1878 Judge Agnew had over 90,000, last year it had dwindled to 23,484 for governor, and this year it is down to 4,431.

The fact that the extra session is now condemned by nearly all the democrats as political madness, has led to much crimination and recrimination as to the actual responsibility for the blunder. Attorney General Cassidy has been generally blamed for forcing the call for the extra session, but it is now stated the wrangles over the error have brought out the truth in democratic circles, and Cassidy is entitled to acquittal from blame for it. Before the administration decided upon calling the extra session, Governor Pattison, Attorney General Cassidy and Senator Gordon made a visit to Secretary Stenger in Chambersburg. The policy of calling an extra session was there discussed and there decided, and Cassidy earnestly protested against the call, but Stenger and Gordon both as earnestly demanded that the call be issued and the party committed to the policy. In point of fact, Cassidy was overruled and the responsibility for the extra session rests with Pattison, Stenger and Gordon, who overruled Cassidy.

The republican senators, at a caucus held immediately after the adjournment on Tuesday, discussed the apportionment question at considerable length and resolved against any departure from the position they have taken for months. The caucus was free for all while the apportionment question was under discussion, but after it had been concluded all but senators were requested to leave. The discussion of the subject of compensation to members of the legislature for services at the extra session was then begun. After free interchange of opinions a resolution was adopted in favor of full pay to senators from the eighteenth of June, eleven days after the extra session had been convened by the governor, to the twenty-first of September, when the senate began holding but two sessions a week. After that time they were to be allowed for such time as each senator shall state to the president of the senate that he was absent from his private business by reason of the public service. At a meeting of the senate committee on appropriations the committee by a large majority amended the appropriation bill by incorporating in it the action of the republican senatorial caucus. The amount appropriated for the payment of senators was reduced from $91,182 to $60,000.

The Philadelphia Press has been investigating election frauds in democratic districts in Philadelphia. The results are somewhat startling. In the 8th division of the Fourth Ward there were 132 votes cast for the democratic candidate for city controller and one vote for the republican candidate, and the names of fifty-three persons appear on the list of voters filed in the office of the prothonotary of the court of common pleas as having voted, who had no right to vote, they not having paid a state or county tax within two years, as an examination of the tax receiver's books proves. In the 10th division of the Twenty fifth Ward 267 votes were cast for the democratic candidate and 81 for the republican candidate, and the names of 118 persons appear on the list of voters filed in the office of the prothonotary of the court of common pleas as having voted who had no right to vote, they not having paid a state or county tax within two years, as an examination of the tax receiver's books proves. In the 11th division of the Twenty-fifth Ward, where all the election officers were democrats, 112 persons voted who had not paid a state or county tax within two years, and ten persons appear as having voted, although their names are not in the assessors' list and no blanks are filed in the prothonotary's office for these unassessed voters, as is required by law. The Press publishes the names and residences, or reputed residences, of these fraudulent voters, and remarks, "The fraudulent votes cast in Philadelphia at the recent election seem to have been uniformly solid for the democratic ticket. There's no telling but that the republican majority might have run up to 35,000 if the brethren of the opposition had voted fair."

The members of the legislature have not only voted themselves ten dollars a day, Sunday's included, for doing nothing, but have agreed to allow $16,390 as extra pay for the clerks of the senate and house. It is the most generous legislature on record—of other people's money.

The majority against Searight, Dukes' friend, for Judge in the Greene-Fayette district was 4,741. Of this 629 was in Searight's own county, Fayette. Searight is so mad at the newspapers which opposed him that he kicked them out of his office when the carriers left them. It is very evident that the people of Fayette county have no exalted opinion of the man who defended Dukes.

The republican state committee in New York, conducted the late campaign on $25,000—a very small sum indeed. The printing and postage on two million documents was paid for out of this sum. Not an office holder was assessed a cent. On the other hand the democrats assessed all the office holders in New York City and state. An immense sum was realized from this source. Candidates were assessed as high as $15,000 each. The state and county committees had all the money they wanted. It is safe to say they had ten times as much as the republicans, or fully a quarter of a million dollars. In Pennsylvania the democrats spent much more money than the republicans.

THE DAISY.

The Mineral Resources and Surface Improvements of the Little Daisy Mine.

[From the Leadville Daily Herald.

The mines on the west slope of Mosquito range are looking very fine at the present time, and the shipments via Bird's-Eye show that no small amount of gold ore has been taken from the gulches during the past few months.

At the head of Big Evans, the various properties are undergoing quite extensive development. The Daisy Consolidated Mining company is on the eve of the completion of its tramway, and other facilities for the shipment of ore in large quantities. The tramway is about twelve hundred feet long, running from the mouth of the Daisy tunnel proper, down the steep mountain side to the ore bins in the valley. Owing to a bungled job in the construction of the tramway in the first place, the ore shipments have been delayed for some time, but since the return from the east of Superintendent Rogers, the work of reconstruction has been pushed rapidly to completion.

The Daisy tunnel shows ore bodies of an inexhaustible nature, that run from eighty to three hundred ounces. The ore has an iron base and carries about twenty per cent. in lead. Work in the Elk tunnel of the consolidation has been postponed, owing to fact that there is no way of taking care of the ore at the present time, nor will there be, perhaps, before spring. The ore in this tunnel is not as high grade as that of the Daisy, but it shows a higher grade in each week's development.

When the company started to build their new hotel for the accommodation of their own and other men in the vicinity, in excavating for the foundation they exposed a body of mineral which has proven the richest and most extensive of any in the consolidation. It is an eight foot vein of sulphurets, which runs about three hundred ounces in silver and carries thirty-six per cent. in lead. The vein has been cut in several places and shows itself to be a true fissure, from which a large quantity of ore has been taken. Just above and to the left of this unexpected discovery is another vein of high grade ore which shows an immense body of mineral, the extent of which is not at present known. Drifts, tunnels and shafts have been made in this body, but as yet the walls are undefined.

When the machinery department is completed the shipments from this property must necessarily be quite extensive, as the ore already on the dumps and the facilities for extracting the various bodies exposed will cause unusual activity in this district.

General manager and superintendent, Hon. Lucius Rogers, who is a large stockholder in the company, hopes to commence shipments within the next two weeks, as by that time the surface improvements will be completed.

Driven Well Notice.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

—Christmas and New Years will come on Tuesday.

—Frank King, of Bradford, offers some fine blooded fowls for sale.

—The beautiful snow has vanished, and the beautiful mud is with us.

—Another term of argument court will commence the 4th of December.

—Venison steak is by no means a rarity on McKean county hotel bills of fare.

—The trains on the B. R. & K. now make schedule time with refreshing regularity.

—Never shake hands with a man with a stub finger—unless you know him to be a gentleman.

—Mason will sell you a decorated dinner or tea set cheaper than you can steal it. Call in and see them.

—There has been some complaint of a scarcity of gas, but we are assured that it will be but temporary.

—When down town stop in at Mason's and ask to see those beautiful library lamps that he is selling for $2.30.

—To have insulted General Grant on a public occasion is by no means an enviable point to score in one's record.

—Hon. H. W. Williams delivered his lecture on "Ireland and the Irish Question," in Williamsport last evening.

—L. W. Mason, for the next thirty days, will give away to the poor and orphans, the balance of his stock of heating stove.

—J. T. Donahue has rented the house formerly owned by Frank Kerrs on Main street, and will soon bring his family from Bradford.

—Union Thanksgiving service at the M. E. church next Thursday morning. There will also be services at the Episcopal church at the same time.

—Prof. Bateman's lectures on phrenology and kindred sciences at the opera house have been well attended. He is evidently a master of his subject.

—The court has ordered the summoning of a jury for a special term of quarter sessions court the third Monday of January, 1884, for the trial of civil cases.

—Those high spirited and exceedingly popular individuals "Tom and Jerry" will soon be due. They are pleasant company, but dangerous fellows after all.

—The opening of the Rochester & Pittsburg road to Buffalo gives Bradford connection by three railroad lines with the Queen City. The distance is 78.17 miles.

—A water motor is being placed in St. Luke's Episcopal church as motive power for the organ, and connections are being made with the water main on Main street.

—At the request of the Bradford Board of Trade, Senator Emery will again deliver his lecture entitled "Old and New Egypt" at the opera house in that city.

—O'Connell told a story of an usher in an Irish court one day being anxious to thin the court, and who called out: "All ye blackguards that isn't lawyers, quit the court!"

—He is an enemy to mankind and an accessory to wife-beating, desertion of family and all villainies, who would keep such a man as Pete Dougherty out of jail by going bail for him.

—Some of our citizens are putting up street lamps in front of their business places and residences, to be lighted by natural gas. The first to be lit is in front of the residence of John Forrest.

—A. B. Armstrong is a gentleman of good taste and has a large experience in the selection of holiday goods, and you will find nothing in his stock that is not pretty and tasty enough for anybody.

—A defective flue and consequent superabundance of smoke in the building drove the worshipers from the M. E. church last Sunday, and there was no service. The devil thought it the best joke of the season.

—The liquor men are preparing to raise a fund of a million dollars to expend for the party that will be most liberal with them in 1884. Journalists and public men who "are not here for their health," can absorb a large share of it.

—John Digel employs eighteen or twenty men constantly at his granite and marble works on Water street and in his quarries near Hamlin station on the McK. & R. road. His Silver Mountain Granite is a wonderful discovery, and will, we hope, make his fortune.

—We have not room to keep the Thanksgiving proclamation of the president and governor standing at the head of our columns, but we trust our readers will not forget that the day falls upon Thursday, Nov. 29, and that they have ten thousand blessings and mercies to be thankful for.

—The Buffalo, New York & Philadelphia will on December 1st, begin the publication of a twelve page monthly, with handsome title-page, devoted to general miscellany and the interests of the road. It will be called Sparks. General Passenger Agent Baldwin fathers the scheme.

—Parties who bet that New York would go republican at the recent election will win the money if the decision of the Clipper, which is good authority on sporting matters, is accepted as controlling. The Clipper holds that the republicans having elected the head of the ticket and a majority of both branches of the legislature carried the state and that bets must be paid accordingly.

—It is learned through Dr. Cox that some two weeks ago a Mrs. Bennett, a resident book agent on Pleasant street, secured the services of a young lady who lives at Farmers Valley. The young lady was in Mrs. B.'s employ ten days when she was taken sick. In the hour when she needed a friend her employer, Mrs. B. forsook her, when her friends had her taken to the St. James and cared for. Dr. Cox was called and has treated her since, at the same time notifying her parents of her condition, who replied saying they would be here on Thursday. —Era.

Closing Lecture.

On Saturday evening Prof. Bateman will lecture on the "Lost Arts and Ancient Races." It will be the finest of the course and will doubtless command a crowded house.

Thanksgiving Services.

Religious services suitable to the occasion will be held in the M. E. Church in this borough next Thursday morning, at 10 a. m. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. F. H. Gates, of the Baptist Church.

St. Luke's Church.

Divine services on Sunday, 25th, at 8 a. m. Holy Communion at 10:30 a. m., and 7:30 p. m. The offerings on Sunday will be for Diocesan Mission. On Thanksgiving day, 29th inst., Te Deum service. Holy Eucharist and sermon at 10:30 a. m.

Lectures on Pilgrim's Progress.

Rev. F. H. Gates will commence next Sunday evening in the Baptist Church a series of lectures upon Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress. The book is one of fascinating interest, and the lectures will no doubt be largely attended.

Held to Bail.

Pig-headed Pete Dougherty has again got into trouble. He was brought before Squire Ford Wednesday afternoon charged with beating and mauling his wife. It was a plain case and the justice held him to bail for appearance at court. Peter is a bad egg, of little use to himself or any one else.

Only a Rumor.

It is rumored, and believed by many, that Loyal Ward is to be Treasurer elect Melvin's deputy; that such was the understanding when Melvin was nominated. Possibly this may be the programme, but it is not very probable that it will be carried out.

Still Bound to be Judge.

Hon. S. F. Wilson, late additional law judge of this district, under the old apportionment, is a candidate for the judgeship of Washington Territory. He is strongly urged for the position, and if he is willing to accept it the President could make no better or more worthy appointment.

Giving Them "Taffy."

The editor of the Reporter has commenced the "smoothing over" act upon the county commissioners. They will continue to be nice clever fellows until next election. The result of the present application of "taffy" depends much upon whether or not they are soft-headed as well as soft-hearted.

Rich Contribution Box.

The newest and richest Methodist Church in New York city was dedicated a few days ago. Bishop Foss made the opening prayer in the morning. Bishop Harris read the lesson, and Bishop Simpson preached the sermon. The Church cost $263,000, and the unprecedented sum of $90,000 was raised at the morning service. Among the subscribers at the morning service were J. B. and J. M. Cornell for $12,000, and eight others for $5000 each.

Death of Alice Corwin.

Miss Alice Corwin died at her residence in this borough on Wednesday, at the age of 34 years, 7 months and 6 days. She has been an invalid for a number of years, and the final summons found her ready and fully prepared. Her life has been a witness for christianity and in her death is lost to earth one of those sweet christian characters so rare in this world of sin and discontent. The regular funeral services will be held at the residence to-day at 11 a. m., and on Sunday there will be held appropriate memorial services at the Baptist church, at the hour of regular morning service.

How to Spend Thanksgiving.

The annual Thanksgiving day is a national holiday, and should be duly observed. The good people of this borough and vicinity have an opportunity to spend the coming Thanksgiving in a very fitting manner. Of course the well brought up American citizen will attend church in the forenoon and join in the public thanksgiving to the Giver of all good. He will be thankful that ours is an undivided and prosperous nation, and will remember the brave soldiers who saved the nation in its peril. Thus it will be natural that he should attend the free Thanksgiving Dinner given by the McKean Post of the G. A. R., the surviving soldiers of this section, and in the evening he will attend the reception and dance given by the same organization at the Opera House. The Post has made many preparations for a grand time on Thursday. Above all other organizations they are deserving of the support and patronage of their fellow citizens. There will be present many prominent gentlemen from visiting Posts, and we anticipate that it will be one of the pleasantest events that has ever taken place in Smethport.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Ira S. Gleason has been confined to his house by illness for several days.

Judge Brown, of Warren, has been in town several days this week, attending court.

Miss Helen Cowles, of Washington, is spending a few weeks with friends in the borough.

W. T. Callar started Monday night for Harpers Ferry, Va., where he will spend the winter.

Hon. C. S. Cary, of Olean, who was not elected judge at the last election, was in town on Tuesday.

Mrs. A. O. Putnam, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a daughter of Mrs. L. H. Medbury, of this borough, is visiting her mother.

Mrs. H. V. Redfield and daughter Hattie started on Monday upon a trip to Chattanooga, Tennessee, to visit friends.

Hon. S. P. Johnson, of Warren, who practiced at this bar forty years ago, is in attendance at court this week. He is still hale and hearty.

Charles Lemmler, of the firm of Gleason & Lemmler, has gone to Buffalo both for business and recreation. Charley needs and has earned the latter.

Mrs. E. P. Hubbell received a telegram this morning announcing the death of her aunt, Mrs. Eaton, widow of the late Rev. T. W. Eaton. She died at her residence at Friendship. Her husband was pastor of the Port Allegany charge a number of years ago, and had many warm friends in the county.

Eugene Mullin was called out on Monday evening and Barney McCalmont on Tuesday evening by the audience at Prof. Bateman's lectures, for a public diagnosis of character. The professor hit both of them off very correctly. Eugene says it is a marvel that the professor could conclude so readily that he was an Irishman!

FALL CLOTHING—Greenewalds', Bradford.

BRADFORD.

General Grant's Visit—Two Vigorous Hand-Shaking—New Standard Time Causes a Mixture of Things—Ought to Have a New Union Depot—News In and Around the City.

E. H. Scott the ticket agent of the R. & P. in this city, contemplates running a holiday excursion to Tampa, Florida, starting from this city on the day after Christmas. It will be an enjoyable trip and a cheap one, too, the fare going and coming being but $64, and the ticket remaining good until June 1st, 1884.

The Rochester & Pittsburg opened up their through trains to Buffalo on Tuesday, and it is a great convenience to the traveling public. Now you can board a train in Bradford and arrive in the Queen City at 10:26—with three hours and thirty-one minutes of time consumed and barring all accidents or delays. Heretofore the trip was made in sometimes four, six and even seven hours. This fact is now happily remedied, and the words of praise bestowed upon the R. & P. officials for their enterprise have no end.

The new standard time which went into effect on Monday last has mixed things up considerably in the computing of time and our local papers are full of it. For instance, the Star, in noticing a concert to be given by the W. C. T. U., said the exercises would commence at nineteen o'clock and thirty minutes, which statement puzzled some of its readers, as they could scarcely divine whether the entertainment would take place in the morning or evening. All the roads centering in the metropolis have changed their time so that all trains leave and arrive just four minutes slower than before. This may be deemed a slight advantage for those slow-pokes who are always just too late for an outgoing train and an hour too early for one coming in.

N. Puzzy—little fat Puzzy, the baker, everybody knows him—of Jamestown, has been on a week's visit to his old friend Ed. Sutherland. The two had great sport together. Puzzy isn't "stuck" on Jamestown and we predict that he will soon locate here again. So it goes. Here is a man who was making plenty of money in Bradford. He had an offer to sell out his bakery and did sell out at a handsome profit. He then went to that deadest of all dead towns, Jamestown, and invested in real estate and such. Now he wants to get back here—no matter what business he may engage in, he wants to come back and you bet he will do it. Ah, there's no place like old Bradford after all and Puzzy is the man who realizes that fact very keenly just about the present time.

Patsey Fragner is going to uniform a base ball club next season, selecting the players from the workmen in his cigar factory. The printers' nine, who vanquished the tobacco rollers in every game they played last season, will have to look to their laurels and come to the front in some kind of uniform even if it is only a coffee sack. Patsey also has a glee club and now the printers are following their example and already four of them have formed themselves into a singing club and are practicing nightly. They are determined to knock the tar out of Patsy's rollers and it is hinted that a grand concert will be given at the opera house at no distant date for the benefit of indigent cigar makers and printers, the proceeds to be devoted to the establishment of a free soup house for the above named classes. Business will be brisk at the aforesaid s. h. if ever the project comes to a successful termination.

Really now, Mr. Editor, don't you think we ought to have a new union depot here in Bradford? Recently there was placed a heavy and substantial platform all around the old rat-trap, but not even a new idea has been allowed to drift near the alleged depot. Why, it is only a few months back when the traveling public were compelled to use the "depot" in midwinter without even the semblance of a stove or steam pipe to thaw out the gloomy atmosphere within. Of course the ticket agent had a cosy little den out of which would issue cheerful rays of warmth, but that was all. Ah, me boy, these railroad people—especially the Erie gang—are a soulless set. We are told that the mills of the gods grind slowly, and it is also said that they grind middlin' pulpy and we hope for the good of the traveling community that the Erie crowd will soon take a drop and whoop up a new shed of which we could be proud.

Homer M. Choate, cashier of a bank in New York, and who at one time was a resident of the oil regions, was registered at the St. James hotel on Saturday last. His name has been telegraphed to all parts of the world in connection with the midnight killing of a burglar whom he found on his premises one night last week. At the time column after column appeared in the New York papers giving the most insignificant detail of the event and praising the undaunted courage and self-command of the banker's wife, Mrs. Choate, who saw the robber in the act of going out of her bedroom window and told her husband to "fire lower" thus giving the somewhat bewildered man an object at which to shoot. Mr. Choate had the revolver in his possession with which the deed was done and it was shown around to several of his friends. He exhibited no spirit of braggadocia, but gravely told the events of that fearful night as though relating the vivid recollections of a dream. The circumstances of the tragedy apparently leave no bad impression upon his mind and he seems to feel as though the end justified the means. The courageous wife of Mr. Choate is at present located in Ellicottville, N. Y., her home, where she will have a season of quietude and rest after the exciting event of last week.

General Grant visited us on Friday last and shook hands with a large number of people from the special car, "Columbia." Among the hand-shakers was Ed. Sutherland, the genial landlord of the Black Bear hotel. There is nothing remarkable about this statement except that Ed. has the thumb of his right hand cut off at the first joint, leaving a short stub, which he has the power of sinking into a man's hand when crossing palms. Ed. is a practical joker on all occasions, and when he clasps digits with some of his friends he is generally greeted with the warning, "thumbs up." On the day in question Ed. and a party of friends were congregated at the Riddell house and some fool in the party bantered the jolly boniface to shake hands with Grant and "give him the stub." The challenge was greeted with boisterous applause, and when Ed. grasped the general's hand he did give him the thumb and in such a vice-like manner as to make the silent man wince with pain. He bore the torture for a few seconds, and after withdrawing his hand, remarked to Sutherland, "You're a gentleman." Like a flash Ed. saw his error and quietly disappeared from the crowd. The newspapers at once took up the hue and cry and the details of the "gross outrage" telegraphed over both continents, and Sutherland is at once forced into national notoriety, but not of that sort of which any man should feel proud. Mr. Sutherland sees his wrong and is very much grieved at the turn events have taken, and we are sure that no man regrets the affair any more sincerely than he does.

Bradford, Pa., Nov. 22, 1883.

The Daisy Consolidated.

We publish elsewhere a very flattering report of the Daisy Consolidated Mining Company's prospects in Colorado. The many friends of Hon. Lucius Rogers, who is superintendent as well as a large stockholder in the company, will hope that the report is not over-drawn.

Almost a Conflagration.

Ex Sheriff Sartwell's new house came near being reduced to ashes before it was occupied. On Friday evening some shavings lying near the boiler in the basement caught fire, and had not the fact been detected by G. W. Sartwell, who happened in the house at the time, the flames would soon have been beyond control.

The Right Way.

The organization known as the Gentlemen's Temperance Union, of Bradford, propose to enlighten the people on the temperance question by giving a series of public lectures by eminent speakers the coming winter. The first lecture was given last evening by W. P. Hellings, of Lockport, N. Y., on "Facts and Fallacies concerning the Liquor Question." The temperance question is no doubt the great living moral issue of the day. Whether its solution is best obtained by prohibition or strict high license is a question upon which good men differ. Public discussion will do much toward the chrystalizing of public sentiment in the matter. It is the right way. If all the demagogues, played-out politicians, cranks, hare brained enthusiasts and reformed drunkards with their past disgrace as their only stock in trade could be driven to the rear, their places could be filled with sensible practical temperance men who would greatly strengthen the cause.

Death of O. P. Taylor.

O. P. Taylor, of Wellsville, N. Y., who has been properly styled "The Col. Drake of the Allegany oil field," died at his residence in that village last Saturday evening. Mr. Taylor was well known throughout northwestern Pennsylvania years before it was supposed that oil would be found in paying quantities even in McKean county as the manufacturer and proprietor of the celebrated Brook Trout cigars. He had made considerable money as a wholesale cigar dealer and manufacturer, and when the immensity of the Bradford oil field became assured, he gave the question a good deal of thought and became a firm believer in the continuation of the oil belt into Allegany county. Acting upon that belief he put down his first well in the town of Alma, in that county. It was a failure, as were a number of ventures. He expended all his money in unsuccessful ventures, but never gave up, although his friends called him a monomaniac and urged him to cease throwing his money and time away. The completion of the old Richburg well in the spring of 1881, however, proved the truth of his theory, and from that time dated his prosperity. Had it not been for O. P. Taylor the Allegany field would yet have no doubt been unknown. He was a member of Wellsville Chapter, No. 207, and St. John's Commandery of Olean. He fully realized his condition and was prepared for death, and leaves his family well provided for.

"You Are no Gentleman, Sir."

While General Grant was undergoing a demonstration on the part of the mob at Bradford last Friday, he met an unpleasant incident which will no doubt cause him to remember Bradford with anything but a feeling of pleasure. Among the mob pressing forward to shake hands with him was a burly, powerful man with a stub thumb on his right hand, by means of which he makes the grip of his hand very painful. It is one of his pleasant tricks to cause any one with whom he shakes hands to howl with pain. He thought it would be very funny to try his favorite trick on Grant, and did so. The General was not expecting any such expression of hospitality. The grip was as intensely painful as it was unexpected. His face blushed, and it was with difficulty that he could refrain from crying out, but he did, and simply remarked to the "smart Aleck," "You are no gentleman, sir,"—as truthful a remark as he ever made. It is said that if the railing of the car had not been in the way he would have kicked the man in the face. At all events he did no more hand shaking with the public, and was no doubt pleased to escape any further expressions of Bradford's hospitality.

Slick Bill Shoupe.

The Allentown correspondent tells how Bill Shoupe, who was for a long time a "star boarder" in the jail in this borough, eluded the vigilance of a Wellsville policeman: William Shoupe, who escaped from John Kinney, chief of police, of Wellsville, while the two were at Baker's boarding house here, is credited with being, in the language of the boys, "a good one." It seems that the officer, with his prisoner, was seated near the stove in the bar room, when Shoupe complained of his left foot hurting him, that he had frozen his foot once and the huge driller's covering was too heavy for him, and he would be compelled to get something else to wear before he could return to Wellsville with the officer. At this Kinney took off one shoe and changed with Shoupe, he putting on the driller's mammoth boot, then Shoupe made an excuse to go up stairs, where he wished to speak privately with a friend of his. Once up stairs the case was an easy one for an average oil region driller. He took his departure by way of an east window, and has not been seen since. "Dublin Dan" says that thirty minutes afterwards the "dude" chief commenced a search of the house, but the boys gave him the laugh, and he returned to Wellsville with one big boot and one little shoe, probably greatly disgusted with the oil regions in general.

A TOUGH BEAR STORY.

Thrilling Adventure of a McKean County Hunter.

We do not insist upon our readers believing the whole of the following yarn. It was sent by a Kane correspondent to the Bradford Star of Tuesday. The hero is spoken of in that paper as Joseph Jones, but Charley Jones is undoubtedly the man referred to. Every one knows Charley to be one of the greatest hunters in the state, and we would believe the story him if of any man living. It is as follows:

"One of the oldest residents of Kane is Charley Jones, an eccentric old fellow, who spends nearly all of his time with his gun. He was 66 this fall. At the age of 12 he was a crack shot and but few could beat him. This place was little better than an unbroken wilderness, in which roamed thousands of deer, bears, panthers and other wild animals. Mr. Jones says he has shot and killed over 3,300 deer, 325 bears, besides a great many panthers, wild cats and catamounts.

"He spends several weeks every fall in a small hut he has built in the midst of the forest, going there just as soon as the season opens. He had a remarkable tussle with a big bear the other day, in which he vanquished the beast, but received serious injuries himself. While crossing a marsh a mile from his cabin he discovered the footprints of a bear. He soon found bruin's home in a cave in a rocky ridge a few hundred feet away. On a bed of leaves were lying two little cubs no bigger than kittens. He captured the prize and was retreating when he encountered an immense she bear, the mother of the cubs.

"Before he could draw his rifle to his shoulder the animal was upon him and grasping him in her paws, gave him such a terrible squeeze that he fainted, when the bear, thinking him dead, released her grip. He fortunately regained his consciousness quickly, and while the old bear was playing with her cubs, drew his rifle and shot her in the side. The bullet did not strike the animal's heart, and as the brute dashed at him again Jones drew his hunting knife, and with one bold stroke nearly severed the bear's head from her body. Congratulating himself upon his escape, the hunter picked up the cubs and started homeward.

"He had gone but a short distance, however, when he met another bear, the mate of the one he had just killed. His rifle was unloaded. Unsheathing his clasp knife as the beast approached him, he plunged it into bruin's throat, but the bear had caught him for the fatal hug. It was a struggle for life or death, and the brave hunter fought desperately. During the struggle the pair reached the edge of the cliff, fully a hundred feet high and sloping at an angle of forty five degrees down to a small creek. As the animal grabbed Jones they slid over the edge of the slope and began rolling down. Jones was carried with the bear, and every foot of the distance traversed added to their velocity. When they reached the foot of the slope they struck against a tree, killing the bear and breaking two of Jones' ribs and dislocating his right arm. He was picked up in an insensible condition and brought to his home in this village, where he now lies in a critical condition. The male bear he killed weighed 494 pounds."

Another Disastrous Conflagration.

About half-past ten o'clock on Friday night the barn on the farm of Hon. John G. Hall, opposite Grant & Horton's tannery, was discovered to be in flames. The alarm was promptly sounded, and a large crowd from the tannery soon came to the assistance of Mr. Conors and his family, who lived on the farm. There was a horse and twenty-four head of cattle in the burning building. The horse and fourteen head of cattle were got out with considerable difficulty, but the remaining ten head stubbornly refused to leave the stable, running into, instead of away from, the flames. A quantity of corn, about twenty tons of hay, one hundred and fifty bushels of potatoes, and a large number of chickens were burned. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, as all the folks about the place were in bed except a boarder, who, while sitting in the house reading, saw the light and gave the alarm. While the men were in the stable, endeavoring to drive out the frightened cattle, five shells of dynamite which were stored in the barn, exploded with a loud report, but did no damage.

P. S.—Since the above was written we have been informed that bones were found in the ruins, which, in the opinion of Dr. Williams, are human, the supposition being that they are those of two tramps who slipped in the barn for the night and accidentally set it on fire.—Elk Democrat.

A Relic of 1865.

At a meeting of McKean Post 347, G. A. R., last evening comrade M. S. Sheldon presented the following circular written by Paul E. Scull, Esq., in 1865. Although not under the same name, the G. A. R. organization is really the consummation of the suggestion of the circular:

CIRCULAR.

SMETHPORT, Sept. 18, 1865.

To the Worthy, the Honorable and deservedly Esteemed Returned Soldiers from the late Gigantic and Wicked Rebellion:

The following suggestions are most respectfully and feelingly offered for their consideration: That is to form and establish in the county of McKean a School of Honor, to be denominated the "Washington Legion," and to assemble and meet together, as many as can any way conveniently attend thereto, at Smethport, the county seat of said county, two days in the year, namely: on the twenty-second day of February, and on the fourth day of July, for the purpose of exchanging salutations of friendship and for transacting such business as the Organization and Association shall, from time to time, require.

Soldiers! You are, in truth, not only living mementoes of the glory and salvation of our country, but you are the Salt of the Nation! and your names, and your deeds will be the boast and pride of all future generations. Notwithstanding all the battles, the sickness, the cruelty and starvation that you have gone through, it has pleased Almighty God to spare so many of you, that we can hardly believe our own eyes when we have the pleasure of welcoming you to your homes.

We are firm in the belief that by and through the wisdom and power of Almighty God, not only yourselves, but your sons and your grand-sons in all future generations, will be a favored class of men; and that the descendants of the noble and gallant defenders of our beloved country will never want for the comforts of this life.

We remember with pride and exultation the battle-fields of Drainsville, Harrisonburgh, Cross Keys, Fair Oaks, Malvern Hill, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburgh, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Shiloh, in the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor, Lookout Mountain, Atlanta, Chapin's Farm, Fort Stedman, at Petersburg, and at Richmond. And our children's children will also remember it for and through all generations yet to come.

We therefore do recommend that, like the old survivors of the Revolutionary War, you form and establish your "society of Cincinnatus," in the county of McKean, aforesaid, for the purpose of celebrating the birth day of the Father of his Country, the birth day of American Independence; and you might with a great deal of propriety, add another day for the "Fall of Richmond."

Very respectfully, from a friend to our Country, the Flag of the Country, and particularly a friend to those brave men who have preserved the life of the whole Country, in the late struggle.

MARRIED.

THEN AND NOW.

Mrs. Popperman Regales Her Husband With Comparisons.

'My dear,' said Mrs. Popperman to her husband one evening, 'I was looking over a bundle of old letters to-day, and I found this one which you wrote to me before we were married, when you were young and sentimental.'

'What does it say?'

'I'll read it.'

'Sweet idol of my lonely heart; if thou wilt place thy hand in mine and say, dear love, I'll be thy bride, we'll fly away to some far realm—we'll fly to sunny Italy, and 'neath soft, cerulean skies we'll bask and sing and dream of naught but love. Rich and costly paintings by old masters shall adorn the walls of the castle I'll give thee. Thy bath shall be of milk. A box at the opera shall be at thy command, and royalty shall be thy daily visitor. Sweet strains of music shall lull thee at eventide, and warbling birds shall wake thee from thy morning slumber. Dost thou accept? Say yes, and fly with me.'

'And I flew,' said Mrs. Popperman. 'But if I had been as fly as I am now, I wouldn't have flown.'

'What not, dear?'

'Why not? Have you done as you promised in that letter? When we were married, did we 'fly to sunny Italy and bask 'neath soft, cerulean,' or did we go to Hoboken and spend two weeks fishing for eels on the edge of the wharf?'

'Well, yes.'

'And how about the pictures? You know very well that every rich and costly painting in this house is a chromo from the tea store.'

'Well.'

'Thy bath shall be of milk.' Do I bathe in milk, or isn't it like pulling teeth every morning to get ten cents out of you to buy milk for the baby?'

'Kinder.'

'Royalty shall be thy daily visitor.' The only visitors I have are the book agents and clam peddlers.'

'Tain't my fault.'

'Sweet strains of music shall lull thee at eventide.' The only chance I have to listen to sweet strains of music is when you and I go out walking at night and follow a monkey and a hand organ around the block.'

'Oh, I am so sleepy.'

'I don't care if you are. Where are the warbling birds you promised me? I hear Mrs. Maginnis' crowing roosters next door every morning. Perhaps they are what you meant.'

'Well, never mind.'

'But I will mind.' 'I was to have a box at the opera.' Where is it? The only time I go to the opera is when you get a bill poster's tickets to a dime museum.'

'It's too bad.'

'It is really too bad. And then you said we'd talk and dream of naught but love. Since I married you we've talked and dreamt of naught but rent.'

THE democrats complain that if it had not been for Philadelphia, Pennsylvania would have gone democratic. This is a startling piece of news. Philadelphia is quite a big part of Pennsylvania and has as much right to have a voice in the affairs of the state as any other part. It is a republican city and that's what's the matter. If it was not for Berks, Luzerne, Northampton, Greene, Columbia, Monroe and York counties, with their 24 000 democratic majority, there wouldn't be much of a democratic party in Pennsylvania. The talk about Philadelphia ruling the state is all silly democratic blather. They don't have the slightest objection to the ring ruled New York governing that state where it can.

Billious Colic Cured By Rheumatic Syrup.

WOLCOTT, N. Y. June 18, 1882
Rheumatic Syrup Co.

Gents—A few weeks since, while suffering with bilious colic, which rendered me unfit for business, I was advised to try a bottle of your Syrup. I had no faith in it at all, at that time, for the reason that I had tried so many things in years past without receiving any relief, but before the first bottle was emptied I was feeling better than I had felt for many years. I know now, that I have tried it, that it is the greatest remedy that exists in the world, and I feel proud to recommend the Rheumatic Syrup to all sufferers from bilious colic, for I am satisfied it has cured me. Wishing you every success with your most wonderful Syrup, I am sincerely yours,

By Neglect

What is at first but a slight cold, becomes a cough, straining and exhausting the lungs, till such an inflamed condition exists, that powerful remedies are not always able to stop the disease and the person goes into consumption from mere neglect. Do not be so foolish but use Hamilton's Cough Balsam, which removes the impure matter from the throat and lungs and exerts a healing influence on the diseased parts. Even those who are but the wrecks of their former selves receives wonderful help. In croup and whooping Cough it is invaluable. Price 25 and 50 cents. Sold by A. B. Armstrong and E. F. Richmond.

Swayne's Pills—Comforting to the Sick

Thousands die from neglect to properly treat Impure Blood, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Malaria, Apoplexy, Liver, Kidney, Heart Diseases, Dropsy, and Rheumatism. But to the debilitated, burdened with such serious sickness, we conscientiously recommend "SWAYNE'S PILLS," which contain medicinal properties possessed by no other remedy. Furniture Made of Yellow Pine.

Elegant furniture is now being made exclusively of yellow pine by several factories in Paris, France. It is stated that the most beautiful and striking effects are produced in this wood by the skilled French cabinet makers. The curled variety of pine lumber is much sought after, and articles of furniture made from it sell at very high prices, and are much admired by people of taste. So great has the demand for this kind of furniture increased recently that several respectable establishments in the French capital are devoted exclusively to its manufacture. There does not exist the slightest reason why the fine grain, quarter sawn and curly pine of the southern states should not rank among the most desirable and popular furniture woods. Its use as a finishing wood is already established, and we predict for it a brilliant future as a furniture wood.

Thoroughly Tried.

After many years experience in my own family and upon my horses and cattle I am constrained to say that Parmelee's Universal Liniment is the most complete remedy for the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia, lame back, sore throat, &c., in the human family and of bone spavin, sweeny, ringbone, spavins, bruises on horses, caked bag or sore teats, &c., on cattle, that I have ever known and take pleasure in recommending to others. Large bottle 50 cents; common size 25 cents. Sold by E. F. Richmond & Son and A. B. Armstrong.

Why Suffer!

With dyspepsia when Parmelee's Dyspepsia, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver Cure will work wonders, relieving you at once. Do not wait till dyspepsia has overcome and diabetes has taken full possession of your body but remember that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." This fine preparation will also tone up the kidneys and liver and cleanse the system of all impurities. Price $1 per bottle. Sold by A. B. Armstrong and E. F. Richmond & Son.

If and If.

"If you are suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take cheer, if you are simply ailing, or if you feel weak and dispirited, without clearly knowing why, Hop Bitters will surely cure you."

"If you are a minister, and have overtaxed yourself with your pastoral duties or a mother, worn out with care and work, or a man of business or laborer weakened by the strain of your every day duties, or a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, Hop Bitters will surely strengthen you."

"If you are suffering from over-eating or drinking, any indiscretion or dissipation, or are young and growing too fast, as is often the case."

"Or if you are in the workshop, on the farm, at the desk, anywhere, and feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, if you are old, blood thin and impure, pulse feeble, nerves unsteady, faculties waning, Hop Bitters is what you need to give you new life, health and vigor."

If you are costive or dyspeptic, or suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill.

If you are wasting away with any form of kidney disease, stop tempting death at this moment, and turn for a cure to Hop Bitters.

If you are sick with that terrible sickness nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in Hop Bitters.

If you are a frequenter or a resident of a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all countries, malaria, epidemic, bilious and intermittent fevers—by the use of Hop Bitters.

If you have rough, pimply, or sallow skin, bad breath, Hop Bitters will give you fair skin, rich blood, the sweetest breath and health. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

That poor, bedridden, invalid wife, sister, mother, or daughter, can be made the picture of health by a few bottles of Hop Bitters costing but a trifle.

How Watch Cases are Made.

In buying a silver watch case great care should be taken to secure one that is solid silver throughout. The cap of most cheap silver cases is made of a composition known as albata, which is a very poor substitute for silver, as it turns black in a short time. The backs of such cases are made much thinner than those of an all silver case, being robbed in order to make the cap thicker and get in as much as possible of the cheap metal. Another important point in a silver case is the joints or hinges, which should be made of gold. Those of most cheap cases are made of silver, which is not a suitable metal for that purpose. In a brief period it warps, bends and spreads apart, allowing the backs to become loose upon the case and admitting the dust and dirt that accumulate in the pocket. The Keystone Silver Watch Cases are only made with silver caps and gold joints.

SAWYER'S OIL
For Man & Beast

This liniment has been manufactured and used for twenty-five years, and our innumerable certificates of cures proves it to be an unequaled remedy. We do not offer it as an 'Internal' Remedy, positively asserting that any liniment that can be taken into the stomach without injury can have little efficacy in acting as a liniment when externally applied. This being compounded of [illegible], is readily absorbed into the system, giving prompt relief even in cases of acute pain caused by Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Chilblains, or from any cause where a Liniment is demanded. The Oils are so penetrating that a thorough use of the Liniment will remove all stiffness of joints, lameness of muscles, or pain arising from inflammation or any cause. Even in chronic spinal Disease and paralysis, frequent use of Oil Liniment will effect many cures. Finally, for pain in any part of the body, use freely, with rubbing and warmth, we guarantee relief. You will find a trial the best certificate of its value. It is the only Liniment made entirely of Oils and we challenge the world for its equal. Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

D. Langell's Asthma and Catarrh Remedy.

Having struggled 20 years between life and death with ASTHMA or PHTHISIC, treated by eminent physicians and receiving no benefit, I was compelled, during the last five years of my illness to sit on my chair day and night gasping for breath; my sufferings were beyond description. In despair I experimented on myself by compounding roots and herbs and inhaling the medicine thus obtained. I fortunately discovered this WONDERFUL CURE for ASTHMA and CATARRH, warranted to relieve the most stubborn case of ASTHMA IN FIVE MINUTES, so the patient can lie down to rest and sleep comfortably. Any person not fully satisfied after using one-third of a box, can return the remainder to the proprietor and the money will be refunded, or send me your address for a trial package FREE OF CHARGE. Mrs. W. T. Brown, Monroe, Texas, writes: "I suffered with Asthma 20 years. Your Great Remedy completely cured me. I wish all afflicted with Asthma and Catarrh to send for it. Publish this for the benefit of the afflicted." Should your druggist not keep the Remedy, I can send it by mail on receipt of price $1.00. For sale by all druggists. Address,

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'
Vegetable Balsamic
ELIXIR

This valuable medicine is purely vegetable; the discovery of which was the result of many years' close study, in order to discover the cause, the symptoms, and the cure—viz: Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and every species of oppression of the Chest and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir has been duly administered its efficacy has been invariably manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—Consumption, at its commencement, is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflammation, when the cough is more observable, but rather dry; then becomes local fever and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflammation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

CONSUMPTION

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, generally destroys the hectic before the cough is entirely gone. Consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions for cure of pulmonary diseases. Price 25 cts, 50 cts, and $1 at per bottle.
